1225 TAKE ENGLISH
3rd Year Spanish Makes Sensational Increase;
History Is 631

The enrollment in the science department of which Earl T. Brown is the head, was way ahead of all previous records, reaching 520. There were more students in physics than the school has ever registered before. The two physiology classes are closed and the biology classes are full. There is still room in the second period biology class and chemistry class and sixth period physics.

The enrollment in the English department, of which Miss Jennie Freeman is the head, was fairly sensational as English is obligatory. Before the day closed it reached a total of 1225, divided into 56 classes. Two new classes had to be formed in B-9 English. In public speaking, which is under the English department, 103 were enrolled.

In some of the departments which were found to be overflowing, provision was made for new classes. This happened in the foreign language department under Miss Stevens, where another class was made for third year Spanish and a B-9 Spanish class.

A new B-9 algebra class was provided for, and it is probable another cooling class will be provided. By combining small classes and shifting the present force it will be possible to carry these extra classes with the present staff of teachers, but the classes are starting at capacity and if there is more growth, as there probably will be, more teachers will have to be employed.

Enrollment in all departments of Glendale high on Monday ran unusually heavy, but all the heads of departments were enthusiastic over the new program method, which they felt had immensely simplified the work of enrolling pupils, and all said that bakers would be given out tomorrow and regular work would begin in a systematic manner. Chaos melted into order in a quite astonishing way and after 9:30 the corridors were quiet as a church.

The enrollment in the gymnasium classes gave indication of the total day's enrollment, but it was a week before all the students have returned and are at work and a week, in all probability, before definite enrollment statistics can be given out.

Gym enrollment, according to the athletic coaches, Normal Hayhurst and Miss Florence Knight, heads of their respective departments, totaled 1,200, or 590 boys and 610 girls, but it is expected to reach 700 to 750 for each gym.

Enrollment for football reached 70, and 30 more are expected to line up tomorrow for the practice games which will be played in the afternoon and continued until material for the school teams has been selected.

The history department, of which Miss Maude Super is the head, had a heavy enrollment, with 631 students divided into 27 classes taught by seven teachers.

J. Rhea Baker, head of the commercial department, says his enrollment has never been so heavy as this year. For bookkeeping, 74 have been listed; typing, 118; shorthand, 53; business arithmetic, 172; penmanship and spelling, 151; business law, 19, and business English, 17. All of these classes will be increased.

Morgan Smith, head of shop work, reported 34 students in three classes in the machine shop and 60 enrolled for wood-working classes. There will be two classes in forge work with 13 students in each, and 38 have enrolled for the auto shop.

Miss Beth Abbott, head of the art department, is wondering where she is going to put all her students. The beginning class numbers 127 and 86 are taking advanced work, making a total of 213, which seems to be more than there is any room for in the quarters devoted to that department.

Foreign languages, of which Miss Isabel Stevens is the head, is another big department. For Spanish, 475 enrolled, of which 39 desired third year Spanish and had

ELECTRIC LINE WINS CREDIT MEN

Association Delegates,
Members to Secure Subscriptions to Fund

P. J. Hayselden, chairman of the transportation committee of the Glendale Advancement association, addressed the Glendale Credit association Monday noon, urging their cooperation in the matter of contributing to the fund which it is necessary to raise in order to electrify the Glendale avenue carline. The meeting was held at the Glendale chamber of commerce auditorium.

Mr. Hayselden said that if anyone in Glendale would reap results from the electrification of this line, giving Glendale a new transportation artery, it would be the Glendale merchant.

It was reported that about one-half of the $25,000 necessary to be raised in Glendale, had already been pledged. A committee consisting of H. M. Butts, chairman, Ed N. Radke, Dan Kelly, Dr. R. V. Hogue and E. E. Gordon was appointed to solicit the funds for this purpose.

In the absence of President Emery, Charles F. Stuart of the Glendale pharmacy, presided. There were 51 members present.

GLENDALE ENTERS MANY YOUTHS IN U. OF S. C.

Some Leaders of Last Year Hi Who Are Enrolled at Branch

No longer do the young men and women of Glendale go north or east for their college careers, they merely step over next door to Los Angeles and there enjoy all the advantages of college life, without going far from home.

Each succeeding year, more and more graduates of the local high school choose the University of Southern California to be their Alma Mater. Some of the most prominent members of the class of 1922 at the Glendale Union high school will be Trojans this fall.

Victor Colburn, one of the most popular members of the last class, will start his pre-legal course, which includes two years of liberal arts work and three at the college of law. While at Glendale Union high school he was prominent in various activities, being secretary of debating, senior class treasurer, manager of the senior play and of the oratorical contest, on the first basketball team for a year, and a member of the "Sticker club."

Don Cameron, who was the president of the class who were graduated last June, will also go to U. S. C. Dick Fisher, prominent in Hi Y work, is another on the list.

Kenneth Crist, who attended there last year, will go back. He was connected with the "Trojan," the college paper, and will continue with the work this fall.

Roy Cunningham will be a junior this September, having taken his first two years on another campus. His sister, Mabel Cunningham, is still another Glendelian who will go to U. S. C. Helen Woods, who has been attending Occidental college, has decided to forsake her first love and "follow the crowd."

These are only a few of those who will go to swell an enrollment which is expected to be larger than ever before, in spite of the phenomenal growth of the past few years, which has only been equalled by the success of the teams. Prospects are particularly bright for the U. S. C. varsity this winter and this fact may have influenced many in choosing S. C. as their college, for, surely, "the teams are the college."

to be denied. The Latin enrollment was 173, including a third-year class of 21, which beats all records for the school. In French, 78 were listed including two first-year classes and one class for third year French, in which 11 were enrolled.

Miss Ellen Hanson says all the students who can be accommodated have been enrolled for cooking, and 11 sewing classes have been organized averaging 15 and 16 to a class.

Mathematics is another huge department, a school in itself. Mr. McDowell, its head, reports a total enrollment of 687, with 257 in B-9, 119 in A-9, 155 in B-10 and so on. Nine teachers will be required to handle all the classes in this branch.

THE WEATHER

L. A. TRUST AND SAVINGS TO CHANGE

Name to Be Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

EFFECTIVE SEPT. 16

Conforms to Extended
Field of Operations
Since Merger

Effective at the close of business Saturday, September 16, the name of Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank will be changed to the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, in order to provide a title more descriptive of the institution, following the merger on July 1 of 20 banks in 24 cities in that portion of the Pacific Southwest located in California, with the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank.

"Pacific Southwest" is descriptive of that economic area lying between Fresno and the Mexican line in California, the Imperial valley in Mexico, the states of Arizona and New Mexico and the southern portion of Nevada and Utah.

Its natural boundaries are those portions where the economic rail haul lies to the port of Los Angeles as against San Francisco to the north.

The urge of these developments resulted in the necessity for the creation of a unified financial system working for the most orderly and rapid development of the entire district.

As a result, on July 1 there was a merger of banks in 24 cities from Fresno south, having total resources of approximately $200,000,000, under the name of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank.

The banks which were involved in this merger, which will hereafter operate under the name of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, include: Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank, Pasadena, Union National bank, Pasadena, Union Trust & Savings bank, Pasadena, City National bank, Long Beach, Fidelity Trust & Savings bank, Fresno, American Marine National bank, San Pedro.

Bank of Glendale, Hollywood Savings bank, Commercial Trust & Savings bank, Santa Barbara, with branches at Lompoc and Carpinteria.

Bank of Santa Maria, with branches at Guadalupe, Los Alamos and Orcutt.

Alhambra Savings and Commercial bank, El Monte.

The First National bank of Redlands.

Savings bank of Redlands.

The Farmers and Merchants National bank, Hanford.

Hanford Savings bank.

First National bank of Visalia.

Producers' Savings bank, Visalia.

National bank of Tulare.

Savings bank of Tulare.

Lindsay National bank.

First National bank, Oxnard.

Oxnard Savings bank.

These banks, with the First National bank of Los Angeles, of which the First National bank of Hollywood has become a part, constitute a unified system, while the First Securities company exists for the underwriting in this territory of securities of the highest type.

The merger was the result of two years of careful investigation of the needs of the Pacific-Southwest. Particular attention in this investigation was given to the working out of plans whereby the credit of the community may be equitably allocated to the various agricultural and business interests.

By this merger money returned to the Pacific-Southwest in the spring from the sale of the orange crop of Southern California can be used for financing the raisin crop of the San Joaquin valley. Money obtained in the fall from the marketing of raisins is available for the early vegetable grower of the Imperial valley. Similarly, the diversity of seasonal movements of other products results in the elasticity of bank credits, and this elasticity in turn results in additional service to the various communities.

It was believed necessary to bring banking institutions together in such a way that the merged institutions would have the cooperative assistance of officers, directors and stockholders who have cared for the needs of their respective communities and have knowledge of their requirements. The mere installation of branches or the absolute outright purchase of already existing banks, would not accomplish the fundamental purpose. It is for this reason that the present method of cooperation was worked out, a method by which none of the local control or knowledge is lost through the entering of any particular bank into this system.

The history of the First National bank of Los Angeles and of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank, which are affiliated in ownership, (Continued on Page 3)

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Daily Press: After reading the views and intention expressed by a certain Ivy street resident pertaining to our city laws to protect the citizens in general and our children in particular from the terrible disease carried and inflicted by the dogs and cats of our community, and having in mind several cases where "vicious pets" (or shall I say "vicious pests") have bitten our citizens on the public highways of this city, I might say that as a citizen of Glendale and a father of children that I'm in perfect accord with the lawmakers of this city and I'm sure every thoughtful and sane person in this city will have the same view. Our lawmakers would not be doing their duty to us if they did not enact reasonable laws to protect us as a whole and if this city became a pest hole of rabies through the neglect of our lawmakers there would be a loud cry from those who love and value humanity above dogs and cats. Those citizens who own dogs or cats give very little thought (as a rule) or care for the little children next door and are sorely annoyed if these children should disturb their "nerves," but when their untrained hound breaks loose and runs away and bites and scares half the community, they get very indignant and threaten to discredit the city as a whole because it tries to protect itself against such occurrences, and there are those who will always be "victims" of the law (?) but we really hate to make a man feel that he is undesirable. J. E. H.

La Crescenta, Sept. 11, 1922.

Editor Press: Just to express our joy of having moved to La Crescenta before your bloodthirsty city officials got busy after the pets.

Such foolishness! I have been engaged in house to house work for some time past, during which time I have called on every house on the west side of Glendale. No dog or cat has ever threatened me, even. Neither has one ever attacked the other boys who have covered the entire east section.

It's time to get a new set of city officials who have more respect for property and personal rights of Glendale citizens.

Disgustedly, R. A. ELROD.

PROPAGANDA AND PANIC

There are two factors in the life of a city that play kindergarten tag with city affairs. They are the two little demons, PROPAGANDA and PANIC.

PROPAGANDA leads the chase by stating that such and such a thing is so and PANIC follows. If PANIC hears some scary thing, whether it comes through PROPAGANDA or not, it believes it, and comes in and makes use of it.

Not every case of PROPAGANDA is followed by PANIC, but almost every case of PANIC is followed by the cry of PROPAGANDA. We do not all fall for PROPAGANDA, but most of us are not above PANIC. The reason for that is that PROPAGANDA always challenges the intellect. PANIC plays with the emotions and senses.

Both are demons. They feed upon each other. PANIC is food for PROPAGANDA, and PROPAGANDA is food for PANIC.

The only way to eliminate them is to starve them out, but since they feed upon each other, the only way to starve them out would be to eliminate either one or both. Here we have a cycle—and the hopeless fact that PROPAGANDA and PANIC are here to stay, unless someone is clever enough to invent the necessary civil T. N. T. to blow one or both of them to atoms.

CHANGES ARE MADE BY GARBAGE COLLECTOR

New Times of Refuse and Tin Can Collections
Made Known

Some changes were made yesterday by the garbage collection department of the city in the time of collection of garbage and rubbish in the various districts. The revised schedule is as follows:

West route—including all that portion of the city lying west of and including the west side of Brand and north of and including Colorado street, garbage collection each Monday and Thursday; rubbish collection first and third Mondays of the month.

East route—including all of that portion of the city north of and including Colorado and east of Brand boulevard, including the east side of Brand, garbage collection each Tuesday and Friday; rubbish collection first and third Tuesdays.

Garbage is collected in the Verdugo canyon every Friday.

South route—including all of that portion lying south of Colorado street, garbage collection every Wednesday and Saturday.

For rubbish collection the south route has been divided into two parts, the east and west sides. Therefore, in the southeast section rubbish is collected every first and third Thursdays, and in the south-west section rubbish is collected each first and third Wednesday.

PROGRAM AT ELKS' PROVES POPULAR

About 300 people attended the entertainment given by the employees of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company at the clubhouse of and under the auspices of the local Elks' lodge Monday night, and each person attended was more than repaid for the effort expended. The program was educational and interesting in the extreme, and the spectators learned the "why" of occasional delays in telephone service.

CITY HEALTH OFFICER ASKS CITIZENS AD- VICE

Dr. Kaemmerling Issues
Statement Upon State
Quarantine

SEEKS COOPERATION

Care, He Says, Will Aid in the Lifting of Restrictions

The following statement was issued today by Dr. Gerhard Kaemmerling, city health officer upon the enforcement of the state quarantine against rabies in effect in Glendale.

His statement follows:

"To the Citizens of Glendale: During the past two weeks, the state laboratories have examined the brains of four different dogs from Glendale and the following report has been returned:

"Two dogs have positive evidence of rabies; one dog was declared strictly suspicious (but not negative); one dog was negative. In the above report, the two dogs whose evidence of rabies was positive had bitten a man and a 12-year-old girl as their victims. The third, or the dog whose evidence could not be declared negative, had bitten three children, while the fourth dog evidence was negative, had bitten a 5-year-old boy.

"Under these existing circumstances, the state board of health recommended that the Pasteur treatment be administered to the first five persons mentioned.

"In view of the fact that the above conditions now exist, the state board of health of California, has declared a quarantine to exist against rabid animals within the confines of the city of Glendale. Quarantine should be defined for the purpose of this act, as meaning the strict confinement upon the private premises of the owner, under restraint by leash, closed cage or paddock of all animals specified in the order.

"It is earnestly hoped that the citizens of Glendale will cooperate with the authorities in stamping out this dread disease and at the same time, protect their valuable dogs and cats from a probability of being bitten by a stray animal. It should not be necessary to state that primarily the quarantine was put into effect to protect the children and others whose lives are jeopardized daily by the danger of possible dog or cat bite. It is for this reason only that the quarantine will be strictly enforced until all danger is past.

"The health department asks the people of Glendale to obey the spirit of the law by keeping their valuable animals upon their own private premises, and the police will see that all stray dogs and cats will be disposed of and in that manner stamp out the disease and thereby have the opportunity of lifting the quarantine at an early date.

"All dogs and cats found on public highways and streets will be taken to the dog pound and the owners will be arrested if the animal has no owner, other measures will be taken to control the situation. (Signed)

"Gerhard Kaemmerling, M. D. City Health Officer."

VERDUGO WASH FLOOD CONTROL

The majority of the members of the Chamber of Commerce committee of which Peter Ferry is the chairman, who are urging the improvement of the land bordering the two sides of Verdugo wash from San Fernando road to Canada boulevard as a boulevard, met at the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening, viz., Arthur Campbell, A. M. Yale, E. W. Kinch. Secretary Rhoades was present, also V. B. Stone.

Mr. Ferry explained that the 90-foot right of way covered by the wash was supposed to be all under the county flood control, but as a matter of fact a portion of it is covered by voluntary easement. All members agreed the wash is an eyesore.

Mr. Ferry's plan calls for a cement ditch. On either side of that would be a 30-foot road sloping to the ditch. Mr. Stone figured that the $100 of valuation distributed over a period of ten years ought to cover the cost and that would mean 5 cents per year per $100 or $5 per year on the average home.

Mr. Ferry said he would like to see the city authorize its engineering department to make a survey of the wash from San Fernando road to La Canada boulevard. This suggestion met with the approval of other members of the committee and it will probably be suggested to the city council.

PIPE IS STOLEN

W. F. Jensen, contractor, who is erecting the store building next to the T. D. & L. theatre, reports the theft of 100 feet of pipe from the job last Sunday.

FASHION SHOW TICKETS ARE GOING WELL

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery Is Gratified at Prospects for Sept. 26

Reports from Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of ways and means committee of the Tuesday Afternoon club, indicate that the sale of tickets for the fashion revue to be given September 26 by Mrs. Earl Pendroy at the Glendale theatre as a club house benefit, is going very well. Some of the ladies who took tickets to sell have disposed of them and called for more. The tickets as sold do not carry reservations. These must be secured at the theatre. For that reason all intending patrons of the show should secure their tickets without delay and get their reservations.

Mrs. Pendroy has been successful in engaging some very striking professional models for the fashion revue, some of them being film artists.

Glendale women should be interested in the announcement that costumes are to be exhibited for all ages, particularly from 65 to 84, so the show will be entertaining to grandmothers as well as debutants. Mrs. Pendroy is now busy selecting the gowns which are to be shown which will include suits with hats to match, afternoon dresses and coats.

Special attention will be given to the hats that are to be worn with the fur trimmed coats adorned with big collars. The very smartest creations of the moment are the large hats and one needs to exercise care to choose a hat whose brim in the back will not interfere with the fur collar. For that reason the revue will stress the designs that will suit the prevailing modes in coats.

There will also be a fine showing of evening dresses and evening wraps, including furs. The accessories of the costume will not be forgotten and the smartest of footwear will be shown from the department of which Mr. Fitzgerald is the head, including low shoes which will display the latest things in hosiery.

CHIEF FRAZER DEFINES HIS DOG POLICY

Now Declares No Pets
Are to Be Disturbed in Yards or Autos

HAVE SHOTGUNS

To Seek Owners Before
Destroying Pets in All Cases

Only dogs that appear to be homeless and of no especial value have been picked up on the streets of Glendale up to this time, according to Chief Fraser, of the Glendale police department. It is not the intention of the department, says Chief Fraser, to kill any valuable dog or pet, but the aim is to rid the streets of the animals that are dangerous. All that is asked is that the people of Glendale keep their dogs off the streets until the rabies have been stamped out.

"The statement of Mr. Briggs of Ivy street the other day to the effect that two officers tried to kill his dog is not correct," said Chief Fraser this morning. "Just as are many other statements heard on this dog proposition. In the first place only one officer has been detailed to do this work, and there has never been two officers employed in this manner at the same time. In the next place this officer uses a sawed-off shotgun and not a high-powered rifle. We are not taking dogs from automobiles and from people's backyards. All this talk is bunk. We are after the dog whose owner does not consider valuable enough to be kept off the streets, and we are doing this in protection of the citizens of Glendale."

"The complaints we are receiving are not from owners of dogs that have been killed, but from owners of animals that may be killed if they are permitted to run at large. It is not our fault if people tie their dogs with strings that break easily and permit them to get away. Let them tie them up as they should and they will not break out. My orders to my men are to inquire for the owner of any dog that looks as though he is well kept and valuable, and upon finding him, to see if he cares to retain the animal."

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS TONIGHT

The board of education will meet tonight at board headquarters on South Brand boulevard, when Superintendent Richardson D. White will submit a report concerning the Grand View school, which he and Business Manager Black have inspected, with a recommendation that it be accepted.

The Glendale avenue intermediate is not quite finished and therefore cannot be accepted, but it will open for school work on Monday, nevertheless.

Health Officer Dr. Kaemmerling is expected to be present to present the arguments why he is urging the appointment of a school nurse.

The appointment of a new office assistant and telephone girl will also be discussed.

DR. H. C. FUNK TO BE A DELEGATE

The thirty-second annual convention of the Lutheran synod of California begins a three-day session at Los Angeles today, meetings to be held at the First Lutheran church, Eighth and Flower streets.

Dr. H. C. Funk will represent the local Lutheran church. Paul A. Hoffman will represent the congregation, with H. H. Plasterer as alternate.

The thirty-first annual convention of the Lutheran Women's Missionary society will also convene at the same time. Mrs. H. C. Funk of the First Lutheran church, Glendale, is president of the state missionary society. Mrs. Paul A. Hoffman will represent the local women's missionary society and give an address.

WINIFRED DRAWS A FINE OF $300

THREE TEACHERS ADDED TO THE MUSIC WORK

Mrs. Florence Parker of Madrigal Club Joins
Hi Staff

Mrs. Dora Gibson, head of the music department of Glendale High, reports an excellent enrollment for the first day, viz.: Harmony class, 27; orchestra, 31; girls' glee club, 28. She had not the figures for the band, which is to be conducted by Herbert White of Burbank, a very excellent teacher.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO WARM HOME

The Business and Professional Women's club will have its first formal housewarming at its clubhouse, 126 South Maryland avenue, this evening at 8 o'clock, when it hopes to have opportunity to welcome all members, particularly the new members, and all friends of the organization, particularly the women who contemplate uniting with the club.

There will be a very brief business session, followed by a short program. Mrs. Zetta Gibbons, a new member, will sing, Miss Olive Pixley will have something to say about the Wright bill, Mrs. Nanno Woods will contribute recitations, Miss Dorothy Woods will give a pianologue.

TUJUNGA MAKES A CORRECTION

TUJUNGA, Sept. 12.—We would like to make a correction in the report of the Moon Festival program. The Scotch number by Mr. Fraser and son was given Monday evening, not Sunday afternoon, as was published.

One of these is Mrs. Florence Parker of this city, the well known professional singer and chorus director who has been a prominent figure in musical circles ever since she came here to live. For three years she has directed the Madrigal club, which she organized, in addition to choir work, private teaching and professional engagements. She is to direct the Girls' Glee club and will fit into the work harmoniously because of her large acquaintance with the girls through her own daughter, Winifred Parker, who is a student in Glendale high. Those who best know her work feel that the school is very fortunate in securing her. Mrs. Parker will conduct her classes in the auditorium.

Miss Elsie Maennel, another new teacher in the music department of the school, came to Glendale from Iowa. She is to instruct pupils in piano and in sight reading and appreciation. She is not unknown in Glendale, as she taught last year in the Glendale Academy of Music on North Brand and made many friends among teachers and pupils.

Herbert White of Burbank, will conduct the school band, and has had quarters assigned him in the auto shop.

CHILDREN'S HOME SEEKS SUPPORT

Sheriff Traeger Comments Upon Work of the Organization

Fifteen years ago the average age of the criminal in Los Angeles county, was 41 years. Today it is less than 25. What will it be in another 15 years?

The statement and question are contained in a communication just received by the Press from Sheriff Wm. I. Traeger, of Los Angeles county, who has interested himself and other county, city and even state officials in a state-wide plan for the conservation of child life and the decrease of crime in California. The sheriff believes that the aims and purposes of the Children's Home society and all similar agencies in the state must be supported in a concerted effort to combat the growing tendency toward criminality among young people.

"Could you but see and know the things that to us are becoming daily more commonplace, your eyes would open wide with astonishment, almost disbelief, and it would make you think," says Sheriff Traeger.

"We can blame the war, unemployment or economic conditions, but the greatest cause of crime would be removed by the proper attention to the conservation of our youth, and by taking every possible child away from those surroundings which make the undesirable citizen. We have a California organization which is directly responsible for a statewide effort to take children away from conditions which produce criminality and surround them with the love and direction to insure normal development and respectable citizenship, and I am asking the support of all good citizens in behalf of this organization."

The two receiving homes of the Children's Home society, at Los Angeles and Oakland, are established to receive and care for homeless children only until foster parents may be found for them. These homes are at present in need of substantial aid from forward-looking citizens of California who desire to see the crime rate reduced.

"A check for any amount you can afford to send will be of vital assistance in safeguarding the future of our homeless boys and girls in California and in furthering the work of all city, county and state officials. The society's branches are located at 919 East Twenty-fifth street, Los Angeles, and 3491 Sixty-sixth avenue, Oakland."

About the only time that we can borrow without interest is when friends lend encouragement to the view.

BULL MONTANA AND TOM MIX AT THE GLENDALE

"Ladies' Man" and "Big Stakes" Opens Today for Three Days' Run

Whenever the youngsters of this town hear that Tom Mix is to appear in a new screen production, there seems to be the same stir in the air that is felt around Christmas and near circus time. This, on the face of it, proves the popularity of the Fox star. So when sonny is unusually polite and exceptionally obliging, if it isn't Christmas or circus time, it must be a new Tom Mix picture.

This star of the screen will develop the youngster's best manner. For that reason, when he asks you for the money to go to the Glendale theater today, tomorrow and Thursday, you may know he wants to see Mix do the daring stunts that endear his acting to the adventurous and if you see your grown-up friends waiting for the picture to flash upon the screen, you will know that Tom's many exploits sold lively interest for the mature mind as well.

Bull Montana, ex-wrestler, ex-prizefighter, ex-caveman; but now if you please, a motion picture star, has no illusions about himself. Some 15 years ago when Bull arrived in this country from Italy he found work in a stone quarry, where he had ample opportunity to increase his strength. Soon he left to go to work in a factory but after a short time returned to the quarry and applied for his former job. The first time that Bull sent any real money home to his folks they thought he had robbed a bank. Bull's first picture for Metro, produced by Hunt Stromberg, is "A Ladies' Man."

BACK FROM TRIP
AT ELKS' PICNIC

Annual Event to Be Held Sunday at Glendale-Verdugo Park

The committee in charge of entertainment has gathered in over $600 worth of valuable prizes to be given away at the Elks' annual picnic to be held next Sunday at Glendale-Verdugo park.

The first prizes for the new and old dances will have a value of $25. Don't forget that every child in attendance at the picnic will receive a prize whether they win it or not.

There are over 50 events on the program including races and sports for everybody. Mr. John Roman has arranged for plenty of ice cream and soda pop which will be given away free. There will be no charge for anything on the grounds.

MISSOURIANS TO MEET
The tens of thousands of former Missourians and their friends are called to gather at the record breaking picnic and rally to be held at beautiful Lincoln park, Los Angeles, Thursday, Sept. 21.

Lincoln park is an ideal place for real old-time picnicking. Plenty of shade and acres of grassy sward. There, too, is located a conservatory, or greenhouse, which is worth seeing and there are other attractions. The Missouri meetings have proven very enjoyable affairs and the coming event is to be the best yet. The program will be to your liking, and in addition there will be races and contests for prizes.

Come early. Bring baskets running over with good things to eat. And make this a day of joyful reunion with friends from the old-home state. There will be a register for every county from Atchison to Pemiscot and from Clark to McDonald.

Spread the news by word of mouth, writing and phoning. For further information call on or phone C. H. Parsons, 10261, secretary federation of state societies, Continental National bank, Ninth and Main, Los Angeles.

sels, where the greatest thrill she received was when the place was pointed out where Edith Cavell was shot.

She was in France about ten days, six of those in Paris. She had time for a brief visit to a portion of the battle zone, which, she says, has been so largely reconstructed that it could not be recognized for what it is except for its newness. There are still shell holes, but nature has taken care of them and hidden them with grass and shrubbery so they are scarcely noticeable. This is not true, however, of the whole of the battle zone.

Everywhere the helmets of the defeated Germans were for sale, many of the fashioned into hanging baskets, and filled with flowers, and this to her was symbolic.

LOS ANGELES BANK AND TRUST COMPANY CHANGES ITS NAME

has been such that this is a logical banking organization to create a single, unified banking system serving that portion of the Pacific Southwest located in California.

The First National bank of Los Angeles was granted its charter in August, 1880, taking over the business of the Commercial bank, which was established in 1875 by E. F. Spence, Hiram Mabury and J. E. Hollenbeck, who, with others, continued in ownership and control of the First National bank. The initial capital was $100,000, the reserve $50,000, and the deposits $900,000.

At that time Los Angeles had about 11,000 inhabitants, and by 1890 the population had increased to 50,000. The bank kept pace with this growth, and by 1901 had outgrown its quarters and moved to a new location on the corner of Second and Spring streets, and increased its capital to $500,000, with surplus and profits of $350,000, and deposits of approximately $3,000,000. By September, 1905, the deposits had increased to $7,750,000.

In 1905 the First National bank, the Los Angeles National, and the Southwestern National bank were consolidated under the name and charter of the First National bank of Los Angeles. By this move the capital was increased to $1,250,000, the surplus and profits to $2,860,000, and the deposits aggregated $13,630,000.

In this same year the stock of the Los Angeles Trust company and the Metropolitan Trust company was acquired by the stockholders of the First National bank for the purpose of handling trusts.

The resources of the merged and affiliated institutions now approximate $200,000,000, and deposits approximate $175,000,000.

The first president of the First National bank of Los Angeles was J. E. Hollenbeck. He retired a short time before his death and was succeeded by E. F. Spence, who presided over the bank until his death in 1892. J. M. Elliott was the next president. He entered the service of the bank in 1881, was elected cashier in 1885, and served in that capacity until he was made the president in 1892. Mr. Elliott is now chairman of the board. He was succeeded as president in 1916 by Mr. Stoddard Jess, who allied himself with the bank

WATERMELON HAD SECRET AMBITION

Glendale has the most fertile soil in the world. And here is the conclusive proof of this somewhat general statement, G. H. Smith, of Smith & Smith, contractors, 353 West Broadway, recently purchased a nice, big watermelon of the home-grown variety. He took it home and when it was sliced, all ready for dinner, a most amazing thing was discovered.

In the center of the melon was a sprout, with numerous tiny roots! It looked just as though it had grown in the soil instead of in the heart of a melon. And the desert was just as delicious as usual on a warm evening.

Milk begins to spoil rapidly at 50 degrees, and even before it spoils it loses much of its nourishing qualities.

For your baby's health, keep the milk always, in winter and summer, at a cold, even temperature—about 40 degrees.

Don't trust milk to an open-air "cooler." Keep it in the pure, cold air of your ice-box—and see that the ice-box is always well filled with ice.

CUTTING BOTH WALLS

The foreman of the jury engaged in investigating the murders at Herrin says that the work will be thorough. All the information possible to obtain will be marshaled, and it will be used in the interests of justice. Research is to be impartial and comprehensive. It will not spare the men suspected of slaying, nor will it shed others who may be responsible for the conditions that led to the unprecedented outburst of crime.

Some doubt still exists as to the possibility of conducting a trial in the county in which Herrin is located. The sympathy there clearly is with the defendants already in custody or being sought. Herrin, indeed, was not inclined to regard the slaughter as a crime. It was not in a mood to blame the rabble that so cold-bloodedly shot down non-union workers.

Professional strike-breakers are not looked upon with admiration. Often they are ruffians who take the place of strikers, not with any thought of doing the work, but with intent to bring the issue to the climax of violence. They occupy a very different status from that of the man who is not paid as a strike-breaker, but remains to earn an honest wage. He may not be in sympathy with the strike, or he may believe that he cannot afford to join it. In either case, his right to stay and to work is beyond any question. It is his constitutional privilege, and to disturb him in performance of it, is an offense not to be condoned.

Doubtless, as to the original contentions of the strikers, there may be cited the circumstance that they had not been treated with fairness. This might be construed as placing a moral responsibility for the dire results upon the owners and operators. However grave such responsibility may be, the fact remains that shooting down a score of men is murder, nothing less, and that no sophistry may soften the heinousness of the offending.

A MISSION OF AMITY

It was fortunate that a citizen of such official and personal dignity as Secretary Hughes was selected to represent the United States at amicable functions in Brazil. In his message of friendship there was nothing new, but there was an authentic emphasis on sentiments often expressed. He told the Brazilians that this country had no thought of conquest. This is a truth that it is difficult for people of other nations to accept. They look to history for precedent, and look in vain. The United States is unique. It knows that within itself lies the potency for the fullest industrial and diplomatic potency it desires. It has had frequent opportunity to acquire territory. Uniformly it had declined. For the Filipinos, which it seemed to be a duty to take, with the purpose alone of protecting the islands, it paid a price in money. For the benefit of the islands it has freely poured out money ever since.

Other peoples on this continent ought soon to be able to appreciate the good will and high purpose of this country. With them the United States holds much in common. It is possible that in the future the destinies of the two Americas shall be more and more entwined and interlaced. The outlook is that this continent will out-rival Europe. It has the resources. It needs only co-operation.

It is to be regretted that Mexico, still holding to doctrine that make its recognition for the present unwise, should continue obdurate. The spectacle is not pleasing, and to the residents of South America, it naturally must be misleading. Still, they are aware that this country, had it been so minded, might have taken Mexico long ago, and without following a course in any manner violating the laws of nations.

THE WRITING OF MEMORIES

The writing of autobiographies in many instances is the expression of self admiration for which there is no substantial basis. He must indeed be a big figure in the world, whose conduct has been so vital to the age, as to merit preservation in detailed record. Even when the writer paints his own imperfections, as did Rousseau, he still does it with an air of complacency. The mere fact that he elevates personal trivialities to such a plane as shows he thinks them worthy to be presented, savors of pride.

Autobiographies weight down the shelves of libraries. As a rule nobody reads them, has desire to read them, or is able to think of a reason for reading them. They possess precisely the interest that might inure in an ancient photograph. Which is precisely, in the absence of purely personal relationships, no interest whatever.

As a rule the men who might write illuminating memoirs are too busy to write them. Lloyd George, an exceptional individual, has agreed to undertake such a task. The result is likely to be interesting, and historically valuable. As a figure of the first class in the great war, he could not make intimate revelation of his conduct and motives without throwing a light on the affairs of nations. Balfour has just declined to enter upon a similar work. The fact is not to be regretted. It is well for every man to understand that there is not a keen interest in his individuality save as it may affect great issues.

The Memoirs of U. S. Grant were welcomed. The compilation of them as the ex-President virtually was dying, was an heroic effort. He not only had been President for two terms, but had led armies of men in a terrific conflict. He had traveled around the world and been highly honored. His countrymen held him in high esteem. They were glad to receive his memoirs.

Many who have attained renown are better known to the public than to themselves. At least the public knows all it desires to know. It does not wish the person who has been perhaps somewhat idealized, pushed from his pedestal by his own frankness. It does not want him over-praised. Therefore, as a rule, it is content to judge him by his acts. On these, and not on aught that he may say about them, his fame must rest.

Interest in the welfare of the Salvation Army is general. To support the organization has been found to be sound public policy. It has done much good and has worked in fields not reached through other agencies. There are rumors of some changes affecting the staff. It is hoped that these changes whatever they shall be may in no way lessen the effectiveness of the army.

Citizens of Long Beach complain of oil on the surface of the water. The present oil curbs the violence of the troubled sea all right, but it does not curb the violence of the bather who finds his suit stained black and smelling like a definery.

Work is soon to begin on a subway for the Pacific Electric from the Hill street station in Los Angeles to Glendale boulevard. Completion of this work will be greatly to the public advantage in many ways. It will expedite traffic between the city and a large outlying territory. It will also prevent the clogging of Hill street, a condition that now involves danger and delay.

NEW GAMES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Two new games have started up. One in England and the other here.

One is called "Beaver," and is played with the beads on the faces of his passers-by. The other is called "Automobile Poker," and is played with the license numbers of passing motor cars.

In Automobile Poker the dealer is Fate. The first card that passes is yours, the next mine, and so on in rotation. Any number can play.

The license numbers on your car make up your "hand." The 0 counts as if it were 10, and there are no face cards.

Suppose the hand dealt to you reads, 10, Ace, 5, 7, 10. In other words, you drew a pair of Aces and a pair of 10's. Two pair. Good for you.

Here comes another car. "033529." Three 3's! I win that hand.

It is usual in Automobile Poker to make the 2's "wild." All 2's, that is, are "jokers." They can be anything you wish. They can be face cards to fill out a "straight" or whatever else is most needful.

Your next hand is hunking up the road. "142311." Three 1's and a wild 2. Four 1's—since you call that 2 a 1. You declare Four Aces.

And, most likely, you win that hand.

In this game you will find your ocular and mental agility put to the test. Cars pass frequently on most roads these days. There's precious little time between hands to figure them out.

And there's the chief sport of Automobile Poker. It's a fast and furious game. Accuracy, as well as haste, is required to decipher and declare your hands.

"Beaver," recently introduced by British university students, is likely to spread to the farthest corners of the Anglo-Saxon world. It is a "silly" game, but, as the New Statesman points out in an unsigned editorial, "it is a silly game in the English tradition of silliness."

And that makes a difference. "Beaver" is played by two persons and the points are scored as in tennis. The object of the game is to find beads on the faces of the male population around you.

Whoever of the two players first cries "Beaver!" as a beard heaves into sight scores. At sight of a white beard one cries "Polar Beaver!" which counts as game. At sight of a royal beard the proper call is "Royal Beaver!" which counts, not only as a game, but as sat and match. There is a story—of course untrue—of a Cambridge function at which, on the entrance of a royal guest wearing a beard, the entire audience of undergraduates rose to their feet with a shout of "Royal Beaver! Game, set, match!"

It is a game that could be played only by a race of men who could keep their faces straight. Foreigners are too excitable. They would come to blows. The bearded man feels as if he were being overshadowed by a secret society, so polite, so grave is every face he sees. Beaver, indeed, is the most secret of games. So quietly is the whole thing done that thousands of Londoners have never once heard the cry of "Beaver!" in a public place, though the game may be in progress all around them.

Dean Swift and Robert Harley, when dricing out together, used to play a similar game with rats. The first of them who saw a rat and cried, "There's a cat!" scored. It may be that all games are silly. But then, so are human beings. This does not happen to be the planet into which the wiser choose to be born.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers POTPOURRI

A Split Infinitive

On the golf links, Deal, New Jersey: "It should not be necessary to ask members or their guests to replace divots or to carefully fill up holes left by them in traps and bunkers. It is their duty."

The word carefully is unnecessary, but if it must be used the following would be correct: to replace divots or to fill up carefully holes left by them.

A Bank Sign

The sign is framed neatly and has been placed in a conspicuous place in a New Jersey trust company. Its heading is "Proven and True." The word proven is given by the New Standard as "archaic," and "irregular," and by the Century as "improper."

When the advertising man wrote the following did he use the word like intentionally: "Chocolate malted milk—like the soda fountain serves?"

Like is not a conjunction and should not be used in this manner. If some persons use poor English, should it be necessary to stress their faults? Certainly all those who use chocolate malted milk do not use such expressions as "like the soda fountain serves," and "like I ought to do it." Would not any one of the following secure just as much business: malted milk—such as the soda fountain serves; malted milk—like that served at soda fountains? Why not try to improve our language?

Differing of Opinion

J. Hier Lloyd: "Saturday's error: 'You and me know.' 'But you and I know' is correct." Reply: If a sentence begins with but, then the expression, but you and I, is correct. However, but is sometimes used as a preposition and is then equivalent to except. At such times the expression should read "But you and me," as, no one but you and me was there.

Yesterday's Error

The right word is should.

I would like to see your opinion of them.

THE LISTENING POST

There was the Little Red School House. Some of us remember it. Red perhaps because red paint was cheaper and easier to get. Just as the old red barns ought to be red.

In the old days there was not so much thought of beauty perhaps. People were pioneering. Building houses and clearing forests and breaking soil and all that.

And while schools were not neglected, more attention was paid perhaps to internals than externals.

Not that externals are not important. But internals were more important. And so the Little Red School House had a floor and walls and a ceiling and a few windows.

Some blackboards perhaps. A good deal of dust. A water pail with germs in it.

But notwithstanding all the limitations of the Little Red School House, some liberal educations were begun there.

By old-fashioned methods and with dog-eared books and the scratchy slate and pencil.

Sometimes knowledge was helped in by means of rod or ferule.

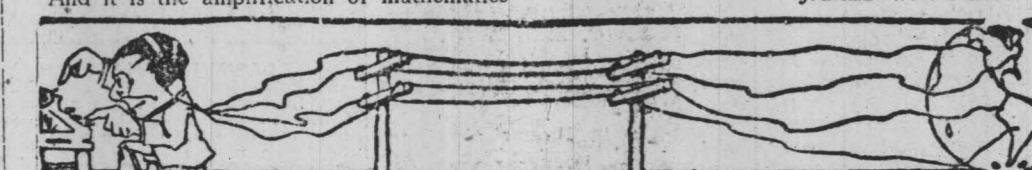

But men and women got knowledge somehow. And made good use of it.

For the value of knowledge depends in the use you make of it.

Just as the value of strength depends on the use you make of it.

The multiplication table is valuable as it is useful. Being we might say the basis of mathematics.

And it is the amplification of mathematics

SONGS OF THE POETS

Mating Song—By Thom

Pack, clouds, sway! and welcome, day!
With night we banish sorrow.
Sweet air, blow soft; mount, lark, aloft
To give my Love good-morrow!
Wings from the wind to please her mind,
Notes from the lark I'll borrow:
Bird, prune thy wind! nightingale, sing!
To give my Love good-morrow
To give my Love good-morrow
Notes them all I'll borrow.

as Heywood (1578-1650)

Wake from thy nest, robin red-breast!
Sing, birds, in every furrow!
And from each bill let music shrill
Give my fair Love good-morrow!
Blackbird and thrush in every brush,
Stare, linnet, and cocksparrow,
You pretty elves, among yourselves
Sing my fair Love good-morrow!
To give my Love good-morrow!
Sing, birds, in every furrow!

Coal Crisis Now Shifts to Homes

While government officials, miners, operators, railmen, and road heads are trying to get coal production and distribution back to normalcy, it is becoming increasingly evident that the home consumer will have to use more brains in feeding and firing his stoves and furnaces if the nip of cold and the pinch of pocketbook is not acutely felt.

The private individual may have little to say as to whether great industrial consumers get the necessary fuel, but he can do much to preserve his own winter comfort of body and check the drain on his finances.

In some sections it may be a question of how to "keep the home fires burning" while in others it may mean more careful tending of the fires to eliminate waste.

The crisis may be met in three ways, according to conditions faced by the individual consumer. First, less heat may be used; second, substitute fuels may be employed; and third, greater care may be taken to get the maximum of heat from the fuel burned.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THRUSH AND PIANO

(From the Brocton Times)

Bird songs may become basic themes for more music than folk songs. This is the prediction of Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, a composer who has been making experiments along this line in the MacDowell woods at Peterborough, N. H. Mrs. Beach's explanation of her theory and her experiments is unique and interesting. "My studio at Peterborough was surrounded on three sides by beautiful birch trees, the front facing a wide view of valley and mountains. In the deep woods nearby the hermit thrushes sang all day long, so close to me that I could not note their songs and even amuse myself by imitating them on the piano and having them answer. The songs were so very lovely and so consonant with the grade is so suspended from the rear seat that it will rock. There are no discomforts for the small tourist.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Spectators can be remarkably cheerful as they look at the ruins wrought by fire off their own premises.

A rich Chicago woman of fifty years propose to marry a gardener of twenty-eight. Perhaps he'll manage to escape, though.

The Pageant of Progress is over. The progress shows no sign of abatement.

Ford will keep running. So will the other cars.

Everybody wants to live in southern California. There is lots of room, but the laggards are bound to be left.

Acknowledgement of thanks from La Follette are made by an editor. That argues that the editor's courage is a little short of recklessness.

While some may doubt it, the truth is that occasionally there is a fire not caused by a cigarette.

California is seventy-two years and a few days old, but just beginning its real development.

When burglars made a second call it really is a reflection upon their own professional work.

Frequent reports are noticed in the city papers concerning the activity of pickpockets, with an occasional arrest, but never any hint of penalty.

It is interesting to know just how large a sum is necessary in proving a sane defendant crazy as a Junebug.

Of course, the order barring cosmetics from the county jail cuts the inmates out of participation in any of the prevalent beauty contests.

There has been no confirmation of the painful rumor that young men in Long Beach use rouge and lipstick.

People with oil shares to sell may have as much confidence in them as ever, but they have become reticent as to proclaiming their wares.

Probation as extended by the courts often amounts to approbation, and thus does not fit the average case.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

To come back to an editorial room only to find that the whole establishment has been charred into ruins, is an experience tending to disturb the process of thought. The work of yesterday in ashes, and the necessity for reproducing it pressing upon the mind, make a combination difficult to meet with suavity. What were the themes of yesterday? How may they be summoned back to be treated anew? Where then busy machines were sounding the activities of newspaper work, gaunt frames of linotypes stand silent, and over the tables and the scorched floors are scattered formless splashes of metal. The experience of being burned out presents no element of the pleasurable.

Fire is a dreadful agent when for a time it rages beyond control, but hope is not buried in the ashes. San Francisco was laid waste by flame a few years ago, and arose a more imposing city. For the present, the work done in this establishment will be done with difficulty; that is the worst that may be said. In a short time, an amazingly short time, normal conditions will be restored, and on the outward aspect of the scene of the fire, will remain no scar, and upon the prosperity that marks the busy place, not a sign of hurt.

Human courage is aroused by obstacles. Human hope is too fine a thing to be held in check by a mischievous blaze. The members of the staff resume their labor without complaint at the inconvenience, and with acute sympathy for the owners.

In such an emergency there appears with accentuated distinctness the spirit of fraternity that prevails among newspaper men, even though they be in some sense rivals. The presses and equipment of one journal ever are at the service of the neighbor who has been deprived of his own facilities. This professional courtesy is one of the splendid characteristics of journalism.

If Premier Protopopadakis of Greece is to be succeeded by Kalo-peropolis, the correspondents who have to wire as to what is being done over there, do not seem to have gained much.

Perhaps the new official will be a good fellow and permit them to call him Kal.

Somebody asks whether capital punishment makes men better. The question is difficult. There is certainty, however, that the person upon whom has been visited the extreme penalty of the law, ceases from murdering. This adds to public security, and is distinctly a betterment. Whether the individual consciously participates in the improved moral status is not to be determined definitely. It is akin to discussion touching future existence.

In this part of the country a reply is inhibited by the fact that the method has not been given a fair test. When a man is charged with a so-called capital offense, he knows that the chance of incurring the utmost punishment is so remote as to be negligible. The probability is that he will get off lightly, or escape altogether.

It is true that there is a law providing capital punishment, but also true that the courts tolerate the presence of a set of trick lawyers whose one purpose in life is to annul the force of the statute, and thus to defeat justice.

In London, where persons who seem to merit it, are hanged, there are fewer murders in a year than occur in each of many American cities in a week. Perhaps in this the inquiring soul may find the answer he seeks.

Probably there is no more contemptible creature than the anonymous writer. Save for constitutional cowardice, he would have capacity for performing any crime in the decalogue.

The sheriff of Kern county reports the presence within his jurisdiction of 2500 members of the I. W. W. If this number live up to the professed principles of their disorderly order, the sheriff surely has his work cut out for him.

An effort on the part of organized labor to oust Attorney General Daugherty has been mentioned frequently. Similar efforts have been made before. Daugherty continues to act exactly like a man sure of his tenure of office.

It was a singular circumstance that the doomed shift of miners should have been photographed only a few days before they made their descent to death. It happened because they had been accommodated enough to serve as "atmosphere" in a set of moving pictures.

Pretty grim publicity for that particular set of pictures.

A boon to humanity would be utter and permanent absence of any and all reports concerning the plas of the McCormick outfit to get into pictures, into matrimony or merely to paint themselves red and climb a pole in quest of publicity.

They are a tiresome lot. They have nothing but money, and don't know how to use the money.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Some one, and I'll wager he was a college professor, because I am a victim of low prejudice and do not like the college professors I know, recently worried himself in print on account of his son.

He is making Babe Ruth and Dempsey and a lot of other hair-headed ruffians like that his heroes, "said this feeble-minded father, 'instead of putting roses at the feet of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln and the other men who really amounted to something.'"

That sort of a father should be taken to a psychic oculist and have his eyes opened. If a son of mine did not worship Babe Ruth so long as he was lamming out home runs every few minutes I would think there was something wrong with the kid. And if I caught him reading up the life of George Washington—

No. That's making it too personal. If I caught him reading too deeply into the life of any hero, ancient or modern, black, white or spotted, I'd have a look at that book myself and find out if there were any passages in it that were worth the attention of a person who might know how to appreciate them. Because a boy who does not worship a leader in any contest of strength or skill is almost threatened with being a sissy.

"Boys do practically all the growing for the male sex," said Doc Whittaker one day. "While they are in the bone-stretching and muscle-building stages they should admire physical prowess. Else they would not run and holler and fall out of trees and get half drowned in muddy wallows they call swimming holes and generally make themselves objectionable to a decent community. They would be sitting in the front room reading a deckle-edged book and gradually getting weaker and weaker until they died."

Doc Whittaker says a runt is rarely worth raising in the pig business, and while human runts must be preserved, both because of the laws and because the backward kid may develop a brain that will set his more stalwart brothers working for him.

"For all that," says Doc Whittaker, "any boy I have anything to do with had better develop his body if he knows what's good for him and let his mind alone."

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

"Dixie"

When we speak of Dixieland we mean the territory lying south of the Mason and Dixon line, and few of us are aware of the fact that the phrase originally applied to only one plantation and incidentally had its origin in the name of a more or less famous southern boy, during the civil war, lived in New York City.

Mr. Dixie paid very little attention to his southern holdings but maintained a great establishment in the north. His servants were, of course, negroes. If tradition is to be believed, Dixie was rather hard on his servants and their hours of labor were exceptionally long.

At the outbreak of the war Dixie found it inconvenient to keep his blacks in New York because sentiment against slavery had begun to run so high as to make it inadvisable for a person of prominence to parade his human property. Consequently he sent most of his colored retainers to one of his plantations in the south.

Very little work was being done on the estate and the blacks, compared with their condition in the North, lived in what seemed to them almost a paradise.

The stories of their ease and comforts soon became known to the other negroes in the vicinity, and Dixie's plantation earned the nickname of "Dixieland." In other words, the most desirable place for a negro to be.

Only in later years was the meaning of the term broadened to take in the South in general.

'GILDED CAGE' AND VAUDEVILLE AT T. D. & L.

Gloria Swanson and Comedy Act to Be Shown Today

In this new Sam Wood production Miss Swanson emerges, for a few episodes, from the conventional fashion creations which have caused her to become known as the fashion model of the screen, and appears in some pretty theatrical and dancing costumes which accentuate her beauty and lend her a fascination not before revealed. "Poor Old Dad" is the title of a comedy vaudeville act Ralph Allan is offering on the same program with "Her Gilded Cage." It is a riot provoking, fun making satire, written by Walter Montague, well known by his work in the Saturday Evening Post and the Red Book.

The interesting characterizations are by Eugene Weber, Miss Dona Vickroy and David Lindsay. It abounds in humor and plot and is wholly up to the minute. Splendidly staged and produced and is indeed another high class "bit" from genuine vaudeville. "Poor Old Dad" will be given tonight, tomorrow and Thursday—two shows each evening.

Reliable Home Builders' Directory and Guide

Modern Mill Machinery

turns out far better work than can possibly be done by hand. This is especially true as to moldings, corner pieces and other wood work requiring exact accuracy. Our mill work offers you that advantage and also that of a large variety to choose from with immediate delivery in any quantity. As to cost, of course, you know no hand work could compete with our products.

Building to Start in Earnest

Conservative men and builders predict the biggest building boom in the history of Glendale this fall. That labor and material will not be cheaper for a long time, if at all, is the opinion of all well informed men, who have carefully studied things.

It is a certainty that real estate values will not go down, but on the contrary will advance right along. Residential lots have advanced hundreds of dollars within the last year or more, and there is a continued advance everywhere. Following the advice of those in a position to know we would say buy a lot and build now.

PASADENA TO HOLD PLAY CONTEST

All Southwest Is to Be Represented by Dramas

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 12.—Open to residents of Pacific coast states—Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Utah—the 1922-23 play-contest was announced today by the Pasadena Center of the Drama League of America. The contest, which has become one of the most widely known affairs of its kind in America, will close February 1, 1923.

Included in the contest this year are plays for children as well as for adults. Tragedies, comedies, light operas, farces, full length and one-act, will receive attention—nothing of a dramatic nature is barred. The Pasadena Center, having greatly enlarged the territory, the contest will cover this year, expects to read and pass on no less than a thousand manuscripts.

Entries are being sent to Mrs. Henry T. Miller, 499 Ellis street, Pasadena, from whom all particulars may be had. Cash awards will be given, as well as the privilege of production for the prize-winning plays. Contestants are not required to be or become members of the Drama League, but all must be residents of the states named.

In the past, winners of the drama contest have produced plays that have gone on long tours throughout the country. One play landed in New York, and held a distinguished place for many weeks. Two others last year were staged in Los Angeles for spring production, while one became a favorite on a nationwide vaudeville circuit.

PETER FERRY IS BUSY CONTRACTOR

Peter Ferry doesn't have to leave Glendale for Wilmington or any other old place now in order to get contracts to keep his big equipment busy. He picks them up right at home. He is now completing his contract for street work in the Kent tract on Fisher, Porter and Windsor roads, representing a $25,000 job. The property included in the subdivision is part of Somerset farm, owned by J. C. Sherer, one of the pioneers of the San Fernando valley, who has been actively associated with the city government of Glendale ever since the beginning of the town, and who now has a chance to convert his farm into city lots at a handsome profit. Roy Kent is the selling agent.

Mr. Ferry will soon start street work in the Rosedale park tract, south of Glenwood road under a $600 contract recently secured from the city. At the rate acreage is being cut up into residence lots, there is little likelihood, he thinks, that he will soon be out of a job.

The look on any married woman's face should convince the girls that the men are not worth the exertion necessary to catch one.

Why Not Attract U. S. Millions To This City?

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Civic Development Expert

"Your articles are interesting, but why are you always urging improvements that mean large expenditures of public money? Goodness knows we pay enough taxes now and we seem to have all the modern improvements that other cities in California boast. Civic centers and great auditoriums and palace hotels and more parks and boulevards are all right to dream about, and we would like to have them here if some of our capitalists want to club together and donate them to our city, but with the continued high cost of living it is unfair to expect the average wage earner of today to help make a city beautiful for the citizens of fifty or a hundred years hence."

This excerpt from a letter received by this writer from a reader of these columns is to the point and timely. As similar thoughts may have occurred to other readers it may be well to improve the opportunity by discussing the value of attractiveness and facilities to any community.

The reader who objects to the acquisition of public improvements with public funds apparently regards civic centers and auditoriums and big hotels and more than one park and a few boulevards in the nature of luxuries that are all right if somebody else pays for them, but not in the least necessary if payment is to be made by the community to be enriched by them.

Not many years ago some people not so far away from this city opposed the expenditure of what they regarded as excessive amounts for the building of new schools and the improvements of streets and roads. How many of them today will be so bold as to say that the fine schools and well paved thoroughfares are not a great asset to this community?

It never has been suggested here that the building of big hotels be paid for with public funds, but a great public auditorium has been advocated and construction of same naturally would be followed by the building of adequate hotels nearby. The combination of auditorium and hotels is one of the biggest assets any community, blessed with ordinary charms, can possess. In the first five years after the opening of its big auditorium more convention visitors came to San Francisco than in all the years previous to that event.

As to the local value of a fine hotel, a single instance may be cited. The city of South Bend, Ind., was not particularly noted, except for its wagons and plows, until a public spirited citizen put up a million dollar hotel. Soon travelers between Detroit and Chicago made it a rule to stop over in South Bend to enjoy the comfort of its well-advertised hotel. Some became local investors, others returned to go into business and before long South Bend was one of the most prosperous of middle west cities.

As to the local value of civic centers, beautiful parks and boulevards, magnificent public buildings and artistic civic development, reflect for a moment upon the long sustained drawing power of European cities. Ever since the first Americans made enough money to travel they have been carting their families and their dough-bags through France and Italy and Germany and the British Isles, scattering largess by the way and returning to America to gather more funds as further tribute to European art and beauty and foresight.

Not millions, nor even tens of millions, but hundreds of millions of good American dollars have flowed annually, when there were no wars, across the Atlantic to enrich the exchequers of art centers, amusement capitals, cathedral towns and even villages possessing rare libraries, heroic statues or quaint inns. For hundreds of years the people have paid the taxes that made the great cathedrals and the fine libraries and the beautiful parks possible and now they are getting the return upon their money in the annual pilgrimage of American spenders.

If all European cities had been built upon identical lines, with the same character of buildings and equal regularity of streets, without any distinctive features whatever, do you suppose the big ocean greyhounds out of New York would be packed on every voyage with the richest and most conspicuous Americans? Do you suppose that under such circumstances many of them would return to Europe year after year and always find new charms awaiting them?

To anyone who doubts the value to a community of art and beauty, of imposing, buildings and spacious parks, of some feature differentiating it from a thousand other cities, the European illustration ought to be reassuring. If a fraction of the millions that now go from this nation to another continent could be diverted to Southern California by the building in and around this and other cities of impressive edifices, splendid parks and wonderful amusement and recreational resorts, would it not be money well spent to make such improvement as suggested while we are still in a growing stage and same can be accomplished more easily and economically than twenty, ten, or even five, years hence? What do you think?

OHIO NEWSPAPER SUPPORTS HEAD OF LEGION

Advocates Principle of Religious Tolerance in All Work

"How a man worships his God in his own business."—National Commander Hanford MacNider in a recent statement on religious intolerance.

The American Legion is based on the Constitution of the United States, which was drawn up to secure the liberty of an American citizen. The American Legion is sworn to uphold the Constitution of the United States.

This means that the Legion has set its face against all intolerance. Against economic intolerance, political intolerance and religious intolerance the Legion has declared itself beyond the vestige of doubt. We must live up to our words.

Our old motto of "Liberty or Death" seems fading from our minds. The new one is growing clearer. "Do as I say or I'll mash in your head!"

We have gone on record as unalterably opposed to this thing. But our enemies, quick to take advantage of the slightest break in our lines, have accused us of it ourselves. Unthinking acts of little groups of Legionnaires are taken to reflect the policies of the Legion as a whole and are broadcast over the country.

Any man who practices his own petty intolerances under the name of the Legion should be expelled from it, and that in short order.—The Ohio Legionnaire, August 12, 1922.
